ROOTING SUGGESTIONS

TEMPERATURE: a medium temperature of 75° F, with an air temperature of 65° F is best for root formation and shoot developement.

WAYS OF ROOTING: there are 4 ways of starting leaves. 1. in a glass of water, (cover the glass with foil and insert leaf stem into water through a slit in the foil). 2. in a pot of bulb plant. 3. in an aquarium, terrarium or battery jar. 4. in a flat or large shallow pan. The last 3 you would use a rooting mixture.

WHEN TO REMOVE LEAF FROM WATER, remove the leaf from the water when the roots are $\frac{1}{4}$ " to $\frac{1}{2}$ " long. Roots may become water logged if allowed to remain in water much after that.

WHAT IS A ROOTING MIXTURE: this can be a mixture of vermiculite, peat moss, and sand. I find that a mixture of $\frac{2}{3}$ peat moss and $\frac{1}{3}$ vermiculite works very well.

HOW TO PLANT A LEAF IN ROOTING MIXTURE: select a firm, healthy, young, medium sized leaf of good color. With a sharp knife (so you won't crush it) cut the stem so there is about $1\frac{1}{2}$ " of stem, then with a razor blade cut the end of the stem on a slant. Allow leaf to dry about 30 minutes then pot in a rooting mixture. Plant the leaf about $\frac{1}{4}$ " to $\frac{1}{2}$ " deep. Leaf may be supported by a small plant label stick.

WHEN TO TRANSPLANT: when plants are formed about 2" in size repot in soil mixture in 2" pots. When plants have established a good root system and are a good size then repot into 3" pots.

WHEN TO FERTILIZE: as a rule the parent leaf nourishes the small plants at first, when plant is about 1" or so a solution of weak fertilizer may be used.

I allow, when ever possible, a long enough stem on my leaves to permit you to trim them upon receipt.

Thank you for requesting my list and the best of growing luck to you with your violets.
